

Bartels Takes Post As Butler County Agriculture Agent

Steve Bartels, Pickaway County Extension Agent, 4-H, has been employed as Agriculture Agent of Butler County.

Bartels will begin his duties in Hamilton, the hometown of both he and his wife, Judy, June 1.

His primary goal will be to "increase agricultural production, dollar wise, in Butler County," which showed cash receipts of $27 million last year.

In his new position, Bartels will be in charge of Community Resource Development activities, programs in swine, dairy, beef, and feed crop production, housing and health problems for animals, and lawn, garden, and pest problems.

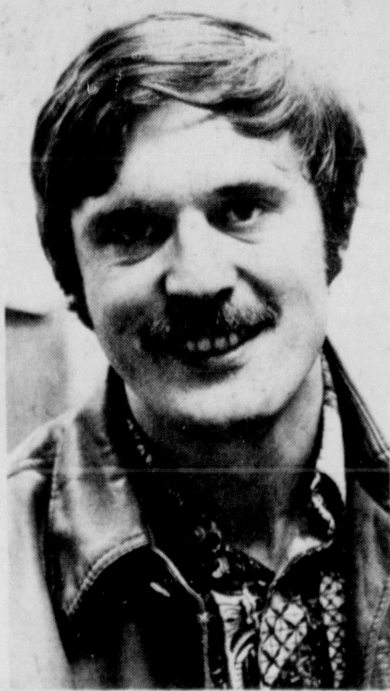

He plans to establish beef tours and a corn club similar to the one set up in Pickaway County by Agriculture Agent George Hamrick.

Bartels also wants to work with community action groups to interest low income families in vegetable gardens, and energy conservation programs.

He has been employed as Pickaway County's 4-H Extension Agent for nearly 3½ years and has been in charge of 4-H programs, training of advisors, organization of clubs, activities of the Pickaway County Fair, camp programs, project clinics, Junior Leader activities, and coordination of county programs with the Ohio State Fair.

He also was in charge of the Mulligan Stew nutritional project and chick embryology programs in county schools.

Bartels, who will celebrate his 28th birthday Friday, is a graduate of Seven Mile High School near

STEVE BARTELS

Hamilton. He earned a bachelor's degree in agriculture at Wilmington College, and a master's degree in agriculture education at Ohio State University.

Between schooling, he served 18 months as a Feed and Fertilizer Inspector for the State of Ohio.

He is a faculty member of Ohio State.

Bartels and his wife Judy, a registered nurse at Berger Hospital, have a 21-month-old son, Brian.

Former County Resident Awarded Honorary Degree

COLUMBUS — Dr. George Robert Bowers, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction in the Ohio Department of Education, was awarded an honorary doctor of education degree by the University of Dayton during spring commencement exercises on Sunday, April 24.

DR. GEORGE R. BOWERS

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold J. Bowers of 11780 Circleville Avenue in Ashville.

Valedictorian of his class in the former Ashville-Harrison High School, Bowers earned his bachelor's degree at Ohio University, a master's at The Ohio State University, and a doctor of education degree from The University of Akron.

As Assistant Superintendent in the Department of Education since 1970, Bowers has been responsible for communications, computer services, elementary and secondary education, federal assistance, guidance and testing, litigation, and teacher education and certification.

He directed the development of sweeping reforms for teacher education in Ohio and organized the first on-site team evaluations of teacher preparation instructions.

During the presentation of the honorary degree, Bowers was cited "for bringing a kind of wisdom, characteristic of ancient thinkers, to the creation of the most advanced standards for teacher education in the United States."

"The nobility of Dr. Bowers' work in this endeavor," the citation continues, "comes from his ability to bring prudence to this difficult accomplishment. We are enriched by his reminding us that leadership demands prudence rather than mere expertness; and . . . that in a complex state of affairs good experts should be subordinate to good men."

Before joining the Department of Education, Bowers served eight successful years as superintendent of Plain Local School District in Stark County — one of the largest local districts in Ohio.

Previously he gained recognition as an innovative science teacher and a pioneer in teaching via television for the Columbus Public Schools.

Bowers has directed the production of numerous national award-winning publications, films, multimedia presentations and instructional telelessons. Among distinguished individuals listed in Ohio Lives, he has also received the State IGE Coordinating Council Award for leadership in providing instructional improvement opportunities for Ohio youth.

He is a charter member of the Association for Individually Guided Education and the Buckeye Association of School Administrators, and a member of the American Association of School Administrators, Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, and the National Society for the Study of Education.

Democrats Kill Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are determined to back President Carter's economic plan, turning down repeated Republican efforts to hand Americans immediate cuts in their income taxes.

Carter has insisted on holding any tax cuts until later, when he plans to offer his own plan for a comprehensive restructuring of tax laws. He has threatened to veto any immediate tax cuts tacked on to his economic proposal.

Still, Republicans spent Wednesday trying to get their Democratic colleagues to accept two amendments that would have provided workers with across-the-board individual tax cuts.

Backers of the Carter measure are hoping to complete action on it this week. It would then go to a conference committee, which would work to settle differences between the Senate measure and the House version.

The Senate has approved Carter's request to scrap his original proposal for a one-shot $50 rebate to nearly every American, but has voted to leave in the bill a provision expanding tax breaks for businesses.

Carter opposed the business tax breaks, but backers of the provision say they hope the President will back off his threat to veto the bill if the provision is not deleted.

Despite the President's threat to veto the Republican tax cuts if they showed up in the bill, GOP leaders argued Wednesday that the economic climate demanded the tax cuts.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, argued that including the GOP tax cuts would be an "exercise in futility." He said he was certain Carter would follow through with his threatened veto and that "there is not a chance on earth that this veto could be overridden."

Long argued that the only reason for the GOP tax cut proposals was so Republicans could tell the voters it was the Democrats who killed their chances for a quick tax cut.

But Sen. Jacob Javits, a sponsor of the GOP proposal, argued that the first tax cut plan would stimulate the economy, prevent an economic downturn next year and create 350,000 new jobs.

But by a vote of 58-39 the Senate turned down the first GOP amendment, a $7.9 billion-a-year individual tax cut that would have reduced taxes on income under $20,000.

Then, by 62-33, the senators turned down the second GOP idea, a $16 billion-a-year 10 per cent tax cut across all income brackets.

But the Senate ended its lengthy struggle with the bill on Wednesday by voting to give a new break to taxpayers who provide a home for an elderly person. The provision would give a tax deduction of up to $250 a year to a person who has a dependent 65 years old or older at home.

Volunteers Honored This Week

NEW COMPANIONS — Brent Hanawalt, right, and Bobby Shirey discuss where they will go on their next field trip. They met about a month ago through the Personal Advocacy Program, where Hanawalt has volunteered to be a companion with needy children. He is a friend, teacher and "big brother" for Bobby.

Brent Hanawalt has found that his job as Personal Advocate Volunteer is much more than being a "big brother" to Bobby Shirey. He is not only a companion to Bobby, but a friend, teacher as well as an advisor and helper to Bobby's family.

Hanawalt is the first assigned personal advocate in Pickaway County. The program, coordinated by Mrs. Diane Berger, is aimed at helping developmentally disabled adults and children.

This week is National Volunteers Week. The advocacy program is one of the newest volunteer programs in this area. The volunteer is recruited and trained by Mrs. Berger of the local office. He or she is then matched on a one-to-one basis with a protegee-client who has a developmental disability. Clients are persons who have mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy or autism.

Mrs. Berger said almost 60 referrals have come through her office. At the present time, there are only eight trained volunteers. She said more are needed and the number does grow as people are informed about the program. She receives her referrals through special education schools or workshops, childrens services, doctors or by word of mouth.

On the national level, millions of man-hours are donated annually by concerned citizens. They help out with religious institutions, hospitals; and health care, to educational and social facilities, to the arts and to public affairs. Approximately 37 million Americans over 18-year-old are volunteering at this time.

The U.S. Department of Labor estimates that by 1980 the volunteer work force will contribute $30 billion annually to the U.S. economy. The state of Ohio now recognizes volunteerism as experience when one is applying for a job.

Volunteers of today are struggling to become involved in deeper issues of society. Dr. Sanford Dravitz of the State University of New York said, "It is no longer enough to bandage social wounds and heal the sick. Inequality must become equality; injustice must be changed to justice."

Volunteers have both the opportunity and the responsibility to become society's value changers if they are utilized effectively. Nothing can melt human social problems faster than the willingness of one individual to involve himself voluntarily in helping another individual overcome his problems.

In the personal Advocacy Program, the volunteer begins as a friend, but frequently his role is expanded to include being a teacher and spokesman if the protegee is unable to speak for himself to obtain his rights. The goal of each volunteer is to make the client as self-sufficient and socially

GE Manager Appointed To OU Council

EDWARD G. GRIGG

ATHENS — At its April 16 meeting the Ohio University Board of Trustees made two new appointments and one renewal appointment to the Regional Coordinating Council of the university's Chillicothe campus.

Those appointed and their terms are Edward G. Grigg, eight years, and Charles D. Tabor, Jr., nine years. Max M. Fuls received a renewal appointment of nine years.

The appointments were made by the trustees following their January resolution to increase membership on the Regional Coordinating Councils for each of OU's regional campuses. Membership on each council was expanded from nine to 11 to permit broader representation and a strengthening of the regional concept of the campuses.

Grigg, manager of the Circleville General Electric Lamp Plant, received a B.S. in electrical engineering and a B.S. in industrial engineering at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg, Va. He is a past member of the Circleville City School Board (Continued on Page 14)

Hospital Board Sponsors Scholarship

Berger Hospital Board of Governors decided Wednesday evening to partially sponsor a scholarship to send one person from the county to nursing school.

Matching funds would be shared with the local Elk's Organizations Berger Fund. The Elk's fund was set up to provide needy services to Pickaway County residents. Total amount of the scholarship will be $500.

Also during the meeting, Administrator Charles Rideout gave the board a progress report on the hospital building program. He noted that architect Dan Carmichael said there may be a delay in getting the plans reviewed for advising and recommendations.

Rideout said he and Carmichael are trying to push the plans through in less than the six to eight week period they have been promised. The hospital's building committee and Rideout have already approved the plans.

Harold Clifton, treasurer, and Rideout will be present at the Circleville City Council meeting Tuesday to accept or reject interest rates bidding on bonds.

The board was informed that Mrs. Betty Jolliffe has resigned from her position as Director of Nursing. She held the position for two and a half years. Rideout is presently interviewing candidates for her replacement.

Rideout reviewed with the board the hospital's long range plans that must be submitted to the Mid Ohio Health Planning Association. He went over a list of equipment and services that he anticipates needing over the next five years, then over the next ten years. Department heads will be attending a seven-week course at the Lancaster Branch of Ohio University beginning May 5. The weekly class will cover information on the training, planning and control of the operations in the hospital. The board voted to pay expenses of the training.

The administrator advised the board that the number of patients requesting room changes has increased recently and is costing the hospital in time and money. Also, discharges after the specified time the doctor and hospital has set up is causing inconveniences for patients waiting for the bed.

Problems in the accounts receivable area were discussed by the board. Slowdowns in billings were noted on the third party payments, and in cleaning out bad accounts.

Rideout pointed out to the board that the main problem was in collecting payment from emergency room patients. Out of the 6,000 active accounts, 800 are in-patients, totaling the bulk of the money. The other 5,200 accounts are out patients with small bills. Because of the open house policy of the board, nobody is refused treatment.

Several solutions are being tried, such as a list of bad accounts and the reasoning for non billing every two weeks. Rideout said another solution might be family accounts to cut down on separate billings.

Dr. Charles Hedges, president of the Executive Committee, reported highlights of the meeting April 15.

He said the committee recommended opening the special care unit by June 1 on a limited basis. He said physicians should be encouraged not to admit extremely ill patients to the unit during the first month of operation.

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices advanced broadly today, extending Wednesday's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose more than a point in early trading.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts continued to view the upswing primarily as a technical rally after the declines that put the market at a 15-month low on Monday.

They also noted encouragement over some better-than-expected first quarter earnings reports.

Today's early prices included McDonald's, up 3/4 at 40; Eastman Kodak, off 1/2 at 63; General Electric, up 1/2 at 52 1/2, and Goodyear Tire & Rubber, steady at 19.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 8.14 to 923.76.

Advances outnumbered declines by better than a 5-2 margin on the NYSE.

Volume reached 20.59 million shares on the Big Board, against 20.04 million on Tuesday.

The NYSE's composite index was up .45 to 53.41.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index added .66 to 111.59.

Thieves Take Tack Items From Barn

Over $2,700 worth of horse riding and grooming equipment was taken from the tack room of the Route 22 East farm of Carl C. Nowacki, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Fite.

The theft occurred between 9 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday, he said. Detective Don Thompson checked the tack room area for physical evidence and fingerprints.

The tack room is located in a barn on the Nowacki farm.

The $2,768 in merchandise includes six saddles, five bridles, a collar, clippers, two halters, assorted bits, and a small refrigerator.

Thieves took a spare tire and rim from a parked semi-trailer at the Circleville Hardwood Inc. lot between Route 23 and Island Road.

The tire and rim are estimated at $160 by Hardwood manager Joseph Speakmen.

The incident occurred Tuesday or Wednesday.

Deputies Bill Carmean and Tim Hasselbring are investigating the attempted robbery of change from a soft drink machine in Atlanta, and the theft of about $4 worth of change from a machine in the Atlanta Grain Co.

An attempt was made to pry the face off a soft drink machine in front of the Fox Grocery in Atlanta.

Store owner Clarence Fox told Deputy Carmean that a neighbor watched the incident about 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Fox and the neighbor chased the car, but lost it outside the small town.

About $10 damage was reported to the soft drink machine.

Deputy Hasselbring discovered that about $4 in change was taken from the soft drink machine in the office of the Atlanta Grain Co. between 6:10 p.m. and 11:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Entry was gained to the building through a basement window. Offices were ransacked, he said.

Fire Destroys Mobile Home

Losses of nearly $22,000 were estimated by county fire officials, who battled a house trailer blaze 1:10 p.m. Wednesday at the Big Darby Trailer Court near Orient.

The mobile home owned by Tom and Maysel Cook at lot 11 was engulfed in flames with the arrival of the first fire units, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff R.L. Phillips.

Efforts to save the mobile home failed, and a small outbuilding and the Cook's car, which was parked in front of the trailer, were damaged.

No injuries were reported.

The fire apparently began in wiring in the living room wall.

Units from the Scioto, Jackson, and Pleasant Fire Departments were called to the fire, along with the Harrisburg Emergency Squad.

Contents in the mobile home and outbuilding were also destroyed, Deputy Phillips said.

SO Checks Accident

An injury accident at the intersection of Route 23 and W. Main St. in South Bloomfield was investigated by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Danny Dewey 1:34 a.m. Thursday.

Jo A. Parikakis, 39, 349 E. Franklin St., was treated at Berger Hospital for a laceration to her chin and mouth injuries, and Michael L. Arnold, 26, Stout Road, was X-rayed at the hospital for possible injuries.

Deputy Dewey said Arnold's car was stopped at the traffic light at the intersection when Ms. Parikakis apparently could not stop in time and hit the rear of his car.

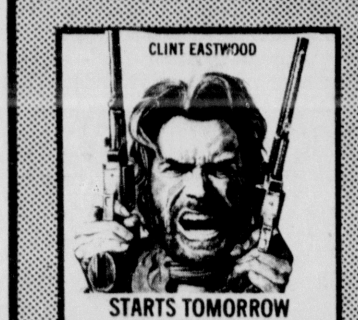

She was charged with failing to maintain assured clear distance.

Both were treated at the scene by the Harrison Twp. Emergency Squad.

State CCC Plan Nearer Reality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's too soon for young Ohioans to apply for a spot in Ohio's Civilian Conservation Corps, but the program has moved another important step toward reality.

The Senate added its unanimous approval Wednesday to the bill already approved by the House. Now it returns to the lower chamber for consideration of Senate amendments.

Then it goes to Gov. James A. Rhodes for his consideration. The Republican governor vetoed a similar bill sent him by the last Democratic legislature, but some changes in the new version are said to have overcome his principal objections.

Federal funding eventually will determine the success of the program, which is similar to the old federal CCC of the 1930s. It gave Ohio and the nation many of their still widely used parks and recreational areas, built by young men out of work as a result of the Great Depression of that era.

Sen. J. Timothy McCormack, D-31 Euclid, asking Wednesday for approval of the Senate, said the bill has "a solid history in this century," and represents a "moderate and reasoned approach" to the problem of some 100,000 unemployed youth in Ohio.

However, the start will be modest. About 200 young people will be accepted for a pilot project which involves restoring lands damaged by strip mining in southeast Ohio. The bill spells out some of the requirements for applicants, but others are left to the chief of civilian conservation whose job is created by the legislation.

As it now stands, an applicant must be at least 16 years old, and the chief will determine the maximum age. An applicant cannot quit school to join, and he otherwise must have a high school education or a valid reason for having dropped out.

He would have to serve a minimum of six months but could stay no longer than a year. Corpsmen would get the legal minimum wage of $2.30, but his clothing, food and lodging would be deducted.

The bill, sponsored in the legislature for the second time by Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, requires that the types of public works projects picked by the division chief must provide corpsmen with "a meaningful work experience."

Further, it allows state education officials to devise programs under which participants can receive credits toward receiving a high school diploma.

It was pointed out that the types of projects chosen could cover a wide range. Some of them are tree pruning, forest management, wildlife habitat development, drainage and erosion control, litter removal, construction of lakes and ponds, pest and insect control, and many others.

The bill provides that in addition to eligibility standards set by the division chief, no youngster could have a behavioral or medical problem. Participants would be banned from political activity, and supervised in residential facilities of about 50 each by fulltime employees of the natural resources department.

Men Qualify Carter Set For Fight Over Energy Issues For Benefits

A widower or a husband can get monthly benefits on his wife's social security record without proving dependence on her under a recent decision by the United States Supreme Court.

Previously a man had to prove he was dependent on his wife to get benefits on her record if she retired, became disabled, or died after working long enough in jobs covered by social security. A woman did not have to prove she was dependent on her husband to get benefits on his record.

Starting with payments for March, 1977, neither men nor women have to prove dependency. Husband and wives can get reduced social security payments starting at 62 or full payments starting at 65.

Widowers and widows can get payments starting at 60, or starting at 50 if they're disabled.

Men who think they may be eligible under the court ruling can get information about applying for benefits by calling or writing any social security office, according to Harry B. Bieber, social security district manager in Chillicothe.

"Social security payments may be affected by earnings," Bieber noted. "You can earn as much as $3,000 in 1977 and still get your full social security payment. But over $3,000, social security payments are reduced by $1 for each $2 earned."

"That means that if your full social security benefit is $225 a month, you could earn over $8,000 for the year before your social security payment would be reduced to zero," he said.

"But no matter how much you earn for the year," he added, "you can get your full social security payment for any month you neither earn over $250 nor do substantial work in your own business."

A man already getting social security benefits may also be eligible for payments on his wife's record under the court ruling, according to Bieber. "But he can only be paid an amount equal to the higher benefit—not both benefits," he said.

The Chillicothe, Ohio social security office is at 606 Central Center. The phone number is 775-4950. The Social Security Administration is an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

PCCH Sets First Meet

The first meeting of the Pickaway County Coalition for the Handicapped will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at Emmett Chapel United Methodist Church, 318 Tarlton Road.

The church is barrier-free for easy accessibility.

Physically and mentally handicapped persons and interested relatives and friends are encouraged to attend this meeting.

Much legislation has been passed for improvement of conditions for the disabled, but the law is only effective when it is implemented. Handicapped persons have rights, but they must use their voice to express their needs.

The purpose of this meeting is to give the handicapped person a chance to voice needs and how they can best be met.

In Ross County, the Concerned Citizens for the Handicapped, a member of the Ohio Coalition for the Handicapped, has been able to implement the installation of curb cuts, a monthly social gathering at Carver Community Center, one lowered pay telephone for use by persons confined to a wheelchair, and have convinced The Holiday Inn to install a ramp.

They are hoping to have the Chillicothe Library barrier-free by this fall.

The Concerned Citizens have twice been the winner of the Community Club award which is sponsored by WBEX.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is described as "ready, very much so," for months of heated congressional debate on energy and other volatile issues because he is a political professional "who knows how to get things done."

This was the assessment of Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, as the first major debate of the Carter presidency — over energy policy — was getting under way.

And looking back over the first 100 days of the Carter presidency, Lance, one of Carter's long-time governmental partners and proteges here and in Atlanta, was reminded of a Carter campaign statement that "I want to be tested in the most severe way."

"He's ready, very much so," Lance said in a telephone interview. He said Carter is particularly ready to be tested on energy because he enters the debate with a "deep sense of commitment" that favorable action on his blueprint is essential.

There is near-universal agreement in Washington that the unveiling last week of Carter's controversial, many-faceted energy blueprint marked a turning point for the new administration — away from a "honeymoon" period and toward long months of intensive jockeying over the nuts and bolts of government.

Asked if he believes Carter is prepared for the energy compromises that many observers regard as inevitable, Lance declined to embrace the premise that major compromises can be expected. But he asserted:

"First of all, the evidence speaks for itself. He's an awfully good politician. He knows how to get things done. He might not call himself a trader, but he knows where he wants to go and how he intends to get there."

Hamilton Jordan, a key Carter assistant, acknowledges that with the end of the first 100 days there has been a turning point in Carter's relations with Congress and the people, brought about by the President's energy proposals.

While he said there has been no change of attitude or mood at the White House, Carter aides were pleased that at this point "a lot of plans are ready to be translated into policy and legislation."

Energy issues are only part of what promises to be a marathon test of Carter's ability to implement sweeping campaign pledges to simplify the tax system, revise welfare programs and prune the federal bureaucracy — all questions that will be ready for congressional debate by the end of this year.

Consciously, Carter set out in his first 100 days to gird himself for the battles ahead by successfully campaigning to elevate his own popularity rating, recorded at a lofty 72 per cent in the most recent Gallup Poll. In the process, he has come close to elevating political symbolism into an art form.

In Carter's view, symbolism and substance are inseparable, with the latter flowing from the former.

If wearing sweaters, holding "town meetings" and mothballing chauffeured government limousines helped to make him popular and enhanced an image of trustworthiness, Carter is convinced his opportunities for dealing successfully with tough problems are correspondingly increased.

As he told some visiting journalists last month:

"The authority and the power and leadership capabilities of any president are derived almost completely from the support that I have from the people of the country."

Lance recalled that Carter's efforts as governor to reorganize the Georgia bureaucracy were the biggest drag on his popularity in that state.

Asked if impending reorganization battles were likely to yield a similar result, Lance said he thought the opposite might occur.

Although the budget chief said reorganization plans, which will start flowing from the White House in June, will mightily upset a wide range of special interest groups, he expressed the view that there is a broad national demand for reorganization.

In that situation, he said, Carter may actually enhance his national constituency.

Carter's constituency was slim indeed when he entered office, having collected a bare 51 per cent of last November's votes. From the outset, in his inaugural address, the new president moved to appeal for broader support, saying:

"You have given me a great responsibility — to stay close to you, to be worthy of you, and to exemplify what you are."

So he walked to his new home from that ceremony, rationed renditions of "Hail to the Chief," avoided limousines that looked like limousines, held a fireside chat, starred in his own radio call-in show, revived regular news conferences and enrolled daughter Amy in a public school.

Richard E. Neustadt, Harvard professor and author of "Presidential Power," told The Associated Press in early February that he was optimistic Carter could make a success of such uses of symbolism, although acknowledging, "it's going to be very hard to keep it from ... appearing phony or falling of its own weight."

Neustadt added:

"If gestures — these symbolic statements — are arresting, noticeable, widely approved and popular, they will widen your mandate ... Voters don't pass bills, but the climate that's created makes an enormous difference."

Jimmy Carter obviously agrees. Taking note of his 70-plus approval rating, he predicted last month that his energy program would cause him to "lose 10 or 15 per cent of that." But he added, "I'm willing to give up some of my own personal popularity among the people of this country to require them to face the brutal facts" about dwindling supplies of oil and natural gas.

The question is: Would Carter show a similar willingness to spend his political capital if he still could claim no more than 51 per cent approval?

That's the real nub of Carter's argument that symbolism and substance have partnership roles in making successful presidential leadership possible.

Of course, performance also figures in the President's equation. He has said it is important that Americans see him as a man who will do what he promises.

After the election, Carter had his staff compile his campaign commitments in book form, as a reminder to himself. Acknowledged to be incomplete, it lists 645 separate "promises."

If Carter is to make good on all of them, he must, on the average, fulfill a different promise every 2 1/4 days during the balance of his term.

To date, he has redeemed a number of them, including pardoning Vietnam era draft resisters, speaking up for human rights abroad, seeking cutbacks in nuclear arms levels and working for the creation of a new energy department.

Only one campaign commitment has been scrapped — and that happened before the inaugural. Carter no longer seeks standby wage and price controls.

Trade Growth Stymied

After years of trying, with some success, to expand international trade as a means to strong economic growth, both industrial and underdeveloped nations today find their trade situations shattered by a single commodity—oil. The huge drain on currencies to finance oil imports has attacked other avenues of trade for both affluent and poor nations like a cancer.

One set of figures tells the story. In the last three years the surpluses on the combined international accounts of the OPEC nations was $150 billion. That money came in far larger doses from the industrial West than the underdeveloped regions. Many of the poorer countries also have rising commodity prices to help offset their smaller oil imports.

As a result of the continued shift of resources, available credit is running out for Italy, Britain, France, Portugal, Spain and other countries. The oil crunch, in other words, is tightening.

The ramifications are not only economic, but political.

Extreme leftist political movements are building on the disrupted economies in several major western nations. Perhaps most seriously of all, the trade growth in non-oil goods so tediously constructed over the last two decades has been seriously undermined because of the chronic large deficits in international accounts.

A continuation of that trend means a decline in living standards for a large number of people. In some nations, that trend already is well underway.

Little Green Things

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — A mother once asked a landscape gardener how soon she should begin educating her 6-year-old son to gardening.

"I'm afraid, Madame," he replied somberly, "you have lost five years."

Another landscape artist, Elsie Sculthorpe, said that "If you can instill in your children a love of gardening, you will be sowing the seeds of an interest that will ever after make their lives richer and happier."

You will also, as no one has mentioned, save yourself a lot of digging, hoeing and watering.

The comments of authorities have given me a certain sustenance over the years as our son, Jonathan, has progressed from pruning a bed of pansies (by mouth - at age 1) through mastering the technique (at age 3) of transplanting tomatoes. We would plant and, while our backs are turned, he would dig up and replant elsewhere

- a common case of trowel transference.

Now that Jon is 15, his gardening know-how indeed makes his life richer and happier. Richer, because we pay him $2 an hour to dig. Happier, because he listens to transistor-radio rock while he works.

Now that ecology is a large kick with many young people, many youngsters can become interested in developing their own gardens. The key to turning your child loose (without turning him off) on a growing project is to give him his own plot of ground or, if that is not available, his own sunny spot near a window. There should be a sign posted, psychologically if not literally, which says "No trespassing by adults." A parent should look, at all; admire, copiously; advise, sparingly; but touch never.

Aileen Paul, author of a book titled, "Kids Gardening," says that it is vital for a child to have "the vital, non-verbal communication that takes place in the sharing of gardening - for example, when one gives a cutting from a favorite plant to a friend."

Because we are largely an urban society, where food comes pre-packaged and flowers come cut, in bunches of six, "both adults and children have gotten a long way from the world of growing things." Although high prices have caused a surge in vegetable gardening in the suburbs, there are still a great majority of city children who've never experienced the "unique pleasure when the first green sprouts appear at the top of a dull-looking narcissus bulb, and later the fragrant flower appears."

It gives confidence to a child, knowing this magic will occur, and waiting for it. There is something certain and beautiful in the world.

Most essential, says Aileen, is knowing how to sterilize soil so that it produces the best crop: spread it thinly in shallow containers such as aluminum broiler pans, place in a 180-degree oven for 30 minutes. Then, of course, cool the soil before allowing a child to plant in it. Children and seeds, both, are ouchy.

She recommends picking plants that will sprout within a week or two or three, to combat the endless waiting that could turn into disillusionment or boredom.

She also warns against disappointments:

"Your child will have problems from time to time, but assure him that everyone does. You will likely kill a few plants, even experienced gardeners do. Don't be discouraged."

Find out what went wrong, apologize to the plant and the soil, and start over. Children sooner or later (says she) will learn that "much of the fun of gardening is in the trial and error."

(I'm not sure I agree with Aileen Paul here. My son always found trial a trial. As for error - if a plant died, he felt like a murderer. But then, he was immature until he reached four.)

If there is no sunny spot in which a child can be shown the marvel of growing plants, parents should buy the fluorescent type bulbs especially created to duplicate the color spectrum of the sun. They are inexpensive and, for most flowers and vegetables, very satisfactory.

The problem with lights, of course, is that little children don't know when to turn them on, and when to leave them off. As plants outdoors don't like constant sunshine, indoor gardens - especially certain types of plants - don't like to bask in glory night and day.

"Don't worry about it," an inorganic chemist named Luke Thorington told me recently. "While it is true that some plants like more light than others, it is also true that all life - human and animal and horticultural - adapts itself to periodicity. So make it easy on your child. Tell him to turn the light on the plants in the daytime, and turn it off when he goes to bed at night."

"Tell him that's what God does ... and for Him it works."

Head Used For Ads

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Former trash collector Ray Valine decided recently to use his head, and now says he's making $100 a day in advertising revenues.

On one recent day he was advertising a downtown bar on the left side of his scalp, a steel company above his right ear, and a restaurant on the back of his head.

He said the idea came to him when he was shaving his dark, curly locks so he could paint his head like an Easter egg "and be Captain Easter Egg for a gas station."

His wife, Diana, does the painting. Valine promenades slowly through crowds around the Capitol and downtown malls.

Valine, 30, said he needs the money because his wife is pregnant. His trash collecting job didn't work out because officials "were giving me a hard time" for wearing a bunny suit on Easter, and Santa Claus and Uncle Sam suits during the holidays.

He said he was only trying "to improve the image of the garbage men everywhere."

"The secret of my longevity is I was born a long time ago."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Headaches of all kinds plague thousands of people. Even intensive investigation often fails to relieve the frequency, the severity and the duration of headaches.

Bio-feedback may become an important factor in relieving the headaches that have failed to respond to all other forms of treatment.

Bio-feedback refers to the technique that uses electronic devices by which a person learns to control and alter some of his involuntary (not within his control) body functions. Most hospitals and universities now have bio-feedback laboratories.

At the Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, a group of physicians has established a special program to study the advantages of bio-feedback in the solution of these problems. They state: "Probably most headaches result from muscle tension and this can be reduced if the patient learns how to control it by bio-feedback."

"The second major cause of headache pain is the dilation (expansion) of arteries in the head. The vascular system can be highly sensitive and very changeable in response to bio-feedback."

"The third most common type of headache pain is related to depression or oversensitivity, unrelated to either tension or vascular causes of headache."

The directors of this bio-feedback program have strong evidence to suggest that patients with migraine headaches cease to have them for long periods of time, with bio-feedback training.

Some patients were able to alter their body temperature, and thus interrupt the pain of vascular headaches.

A group of other patients who developed the ability to relax through bio-feedback were able to reduce muscle tension responsible for head pain.

Bio-feedback methods are constantly demonstrating the ability of a person to control his reflex actions and to influence his body responses. It is now accepted that bio-feedback can cause fluctuations in blood pressure, changes in temperature and even affect brain waves.

All of this is no longer speculative. The bio-feedback technique has won great acceptance by responsible research workers, as a new and exciting therapeutic tool for many medical disorders. Now, its direction for the relief of some forms of headaches will be welcomed by sufferers of intense headache pain.

Peanut Supports Stir Capitol Fuss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The compromise legislation the Agriculture Department has worked out for a new peanut price support program will sharply cut the present law's budget, officials say.

Despite that, it apparently would violate President Carter's policy that new farm programs not guarantee growers of a specific crop a profit.

The plan, which some growers still are resisting after other factions of the business have agreed to it, would guarantee a profit of at least 6.6 per cent on a national average to peanut farmers next year.

The Senate Agriculture Committee was expected to vote on it today.

Carter, former head of his family's peanut business, long ago directed that he be kept out of the battles that have been going on behind the scenes for two months.

The peanut program has been the only farm program in recent years to cost the taxpayers substantial sums, about $250 million last year. That has helped make it a favorite target each year of a number of northeastern members of Congress.

The compromise measure projects costs next year of $108 million, dropping in large steps to $15 million by 1981.

The principal alternative offered, still a cutback, would average $208 million a year over four years.

On top of the costs, the support levels have tended to price the peanuts out of the world market and kept the cost to U.S. consumers of such products as peanut butter above what they might be without the supports.

Those conditions might well continue under the USDA proposals, reportedly acceptable now to most growers' representatives, the last hold-outs after processors; the government; and other elements.

One top administration official commented Tuesday as the committee began discussing the measure, "A peanut grower has to be crazy to fight this. It's like getting $17 soybeans, $5 corn or $1 cotton."

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Just as some business economists are upgrading their diagnosis of 1977's economic health, the White House appears to think the patient won't be as strong as anticipated.

The most important revision by the Office of Management and Budget is its expectation of an inflation rate, as measured by the consumer price index, of 6.7 per cent for the 12 months to December 1977, or 1.4 per cent more than foreseen earlier.

At the same time, some business economists have gone the other way, anticipating less inflation than before, mainly because President Carter has removed the $50 rebate factor from his economic program.

"Assuming that Congress goes along with the administration, which looks likely, the near-term danger of substantially higher inflation and interest rates has been sharply reduced," said Albert Cox Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics Inc.

Cox has been among the foremost opponents of economic stimulus, saying for many weeks that it was unnecessary and that if applied would lead to a precarious economic imbalance.

Now, following Carter's dropping of the rebate proposal, he is telling clients that "stable growth looks much more probable in the year ahead and somewhat more probable later in 1978 as well." Prospects for double-digit inflation have been reduced, he says.

While Cox and others were revising their outlook to include a bit more sunshine, Budget Director Bert Lance was beginning to see more gray as he looked through his economic telescope.

Along with more inflation, his office foresees a smaller rise in the total output of goods and services, some 4.9 per cent compared with a gain of 5.4 per cent announced just two months ago.

The revision is said to be a consequence of the severe winter and the continued drought in the West.

Oddly, some business economists are now expressing relief that the economy apparently came through the winter without long-lasting or irreversible damage. And they see the drought, while remaining serious, somewhat alleviated.

Despite the introduction of gray matter into the relatively brighter scenario it had been using, there is now little in the White House forecast that differs greatly from that of some widely used independent economists.

The former has revised downward the expected advances. The latter have closed the gap from their end by revising upward their anticipations for the economy.

But perhaps more important than these considerations is the belief, held by both government and private economists, that the much troubled American economy is making progress, and relative to other countries, strong progress.

It is fascinating to reflect upon a simple fact about the U.S. economy in 1977, says Rinfret, and it is this: "The American rate of economic growth will outstrip any major industrial economy in the world, including the U.S.S.R. and Japan."

U.S. Families Losing Fight On Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — Austerity is getting more expensive all the time, the government says.

The Labor Department said Tuesday it costs an urban family of four more than $10,000 a year to support an "austere" living standard. The same family needs $16,236 to live moderately and $23,759 for an existence with some luxuries, the new figures show.

The cost of living, based on calculations from last fall, rose 4.7 per cent for the austere budget, 6 per cent for the moderate budget and 6.6 per cent for the higher budget over the previous year.

The department makes its calculations for a hypothetical family with a 38-year-old breadwinner, a wife who doesn't work outside the home and their two children, a 13-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.

The estimates include personal income taxes and Social Security payments.

As was the case in 1975, living costs were lower in Southern cities than in other metropolitan areas.

A poor family of four would have found the lowest costs in Austin, Texas, and the highest in Anchorage, Alaska.

The high-budget family would have found a low of $20,628 to maintain its standard of living in Austin and a high of $29,667 in metropolitan New York and some areas of New England, the Labor Department said.

Carol Teets and Travis joined them over the Easter weekend.

Good Samaritan Streaker Arrested

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Streaking and Samaritanism didn't mix for an Athens youth.

Athens policeman Dale Adams, 36, was chasing two streakers across the Ohio University campus early Tuesday when he suffered an apparent heart attack.

One of the young men came back to see if he could help and Adams clapped the cuffs on him.

More police arrived, some to take Adams to a hospital, where he was listed in fair condition, the others to take the streaker, whose identity was withheld, to police headquarters. He was released while police determined if charges would be filed.

BLUFFTON, Ohio (AP) — Bluffton College President Benjamin Sprunger announced his resignation Monday night at a meeting of the school's board of trustees. The resignation becomes effective next August.

Sprunger told the trustees he decided to leave his post because he believed he had accomplished financial stability for the college as he was asked to do when he became president in 1972.

Sprunger, 39, said he announced his resignation well in advance to give trustees time for an unhurried search for his successor.

Derby News

MRS. GEORGIA SWEET, 896-2462

One of Derby's oldest organizations which is still growing is the I.O.O.F. Lodge No. 770, instituted on May 18, 1888 and which quickly grew to 88 members. Its motto is truth, love, and friendship signified by three links joined together. Its first officers were Noble Grand — F. B. Zay; Vice-Grand — J. L. McKinney; Warden — John Little; Secretary — William Chidney; Treasurer — L. W. Sherwood; Washington Lodge No. 1 was instituted April 26, 1819 in Baltimore, Maryland, membership, 5. By Dec. 31, 1889 it had grown to include 8,789 lodges.

Meetings were first held on the second floor of Mr. Mitchell's meat shop located at the corner of London Road and Oak Street; all that marks the spot today is a vacant lot across from the Jim McPherson residence. The foundation for the Derby I.O.O.F. Hall was laid in 1906. It was built of pressed brick and was soon completed at the cost of $4,000. Meetings have been held there ever since.

Milt C. Edwards had his stove, hardware, and farm implement store downstairs till the 40s when ill health forced him to close. The I.O.O.F. was responsible for organizing the first Derby Homecoming and Fish Fry in September 1914. It was held for years in the Bauhan woods, now the property of Mrs. Mae Delay.

Since my own father was a member of the lodge from age 22 till his death in 1954, his family knows first hand the services rendered our community and its concern for members in trouble and illness, and the high regard and loyalty of each member for their lodge. Friendship, love, and truth surely abound here. When meetings were held in those days members families were often invited to attend on special occasions.

Members past and present have included men from all walks of life — doctors: (Our first, Dr. C. W. Higgins), Dr. Alfred Deyo, Stump, Toops; teachers: Sark, Green, Hall; one of the first B. and O. R. agents, W. B. Woodmansee; the stone quarry owner — Harry Mantle; carpenters: Geddis, Kitchen, Clifton, Neff, Francis, a harnessmaker — S. L. Shepperd; and many farmers — the earliest — William Bauhan, Carpenter, Ridgeway, Mitchell, Minton, Brooks; a lawyer — Albert Brooks, and at least two postmasters, H. R. Matthes and William (Brad) Spradlin.

Today, the I.O.O.F. still serves the community, along with the Derby Men's Club. Mrs. Ruth Kanode, a Derby Rebekah, inherited her grandfather's 100 year old I.O.O.F. pin. It was presented to her husband. When Mr. Kanode passed away it was then presented to the husband of another Rebekah, Mrs. Ruth Hite. Mrs. Hite's husband passed away some years ago and it has been presented to Harold Harmon, Past Noble Grand of Lodge No. 770; he and Mrs. Harmon, also a Rebekah, value the pin very highly.

Judge William Ammer, District Deputy Grand Master, conducted installation of new officers on April 5 of this year. These new officers include Robert Arnold — Noble Grand; Robert Brokamp — Vice Grand; Victor Spradlin — Warden; William (Brad) Spradlin; secretary; and Charles Shannon treasurer.

The sermon title for worship service at the Derby United Methodist Church May 1 will be "The Celebration" with the Rev. Larry Zellers in the pulpit.

The Fish Net group at the Derby Church are selling small kerosene lamps to earn money for future projects. They have sold so well that they are ordering more. They can be purchased from any Fish Net member.

A reminder that three well-known professional gospel singing groups are scheduled to appear at the Grove City High School April 29, including the Crusaders. Sponsored by the Derby Lakers Athletic Committee. Tickets can be obtained from any member.

Last week Mrs. Lillian Nance was kind enough to give me some information about the Derby School. I invited her to correct any mistakes I made. Well, I did, and she did, so her it is: She herself did not attend the classes in the little house or the Township house; but started at the age of seven in the new school building and graduated there in 1912. Thank you so much, Lillian.

Officers elected during the business meeting for the 1977-78 year included: Roger Hill - President; Leah Black - secretary; Linda Beavers - discussion leader; Sheila Writsel - women's committee representative; and Gene Beavers - public relations representative.

A discussion on rural aging and problems of the senior citizens in our rural area was led by Carolyn Ohnewehr. Following the meeting, refreshments were served to Bob and Leah Black and children, Gene and Linda Beavers and children, and Jeff and Sheila Writsel and daughter. The May meeting will be at the home of the Beavers.

This community offers its condolences to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hughes and family, and to other relatives on the loss of Jack's brother, Richard, 49, who passed away on Friday.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Can A Woman Be Charged With Rape

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old woman with a problem I am almost ashamed to admit, but I need an answer, and you're the only one I can ask without embarrassing myself, so here goes:

I've been seeing a 15-year-old boy, and we really dig each other. He's very mature for his age (physically, that is) so when he told me he was 20, I believed him.

I admit, it was dumb of me, but we were at his house and his parents walked in on us and caught us in "the act".

I know that an adult male who is caught having relations with a minor can be arrested for statutory rape, but does that hold true for an adult female and an underage boy?

His parents said they are going to have me arrested. Can they get me for statutory rape?

WORRIED IN CALIFORNIA
DEAR ABBY: No, but in California, one can be charged with "contributing to the delinquency of a minor."

DEAR ABBY: As a lawyer, I would like to comment on your answer to SPEECHLESS, wherein you advised her to tell Grandma to "write down" how she wanted her jewelry, silver and heirlooms to be divided after she died.

Abby, please tell your readers that unless Grandma "writes it down" in the form of a will, the only way her favorite loved ones are going to get what she wanted them to get is to climb through the back window while they're carrying Grandma out the front door.

Please correct this as soon as possible, or all my clients for whom I have prepared wills will think I have overcharged them, and they'll be out in the parking lot slashing tires.

LAWYER
DEAR ABBY: You're right. I should have told SPEECHLESS to advise Grandma to engage a lawyer to draw up a proper will because most of those handwritten do-it-yourself wills aren't worth the paper they're written on. In matters having to do with the law, it's wise (and cheaper in the long run) to hire a lawyer and pay him for what he knows.

DEAR ABBY: I have just experienced one of the most uncomfortable afternoons of my life. I had a luncheon for three close friends, one of whom is a widow. The other two women spent the entire afternoon bragging about the gifts their husband had given them, the trips they had taken and their plans for future trips. The little widow had nothing to contribute to the conversation, so she just sat and listened. I could tell she was hurt.

Don't women realize how often they do this? I am furious because this happened in my home. I haven't as yet had the opportunity to tell those two women how inexcusably rude they were, but I hope you will mention it in your column because they both read it.

DISGUSTED IN DALLAS

DEAR DISGUSTED: I shall. But don't hesitate to let the offending women know your feelings. And should you ever find yourself in the company of such thoughtless and insensitive people, steer the conversation to another subject.

Lien Repeal Bill Backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill designed to protect homeowners from unscrupulous or shoddily managed contractor operations has been recommended for approval by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill repeals the so-called "mechanics' lien" law, under which a homeowner can be forced to pay twice for construction or repairs, if contractors and subcontractors on the work failed to live up to their obligations to each other.

Already approved by the House, a favorable Senate floor vote on the measure, by Rep. John D. Thompson Jr., D-15 Cleveland, would send it back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

Judiciary Chairman Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, said most of the amendments were technical, and did not change the main thrust of the legislation.

As the bill left the House, it applied only to one- and two-family residential units.

One of the Senate amendments extended the protections embodied in the bill to owners of condominium units.

Gov. James A. Rhodes vetoed a similar bill last year, but majority Democrats, who now have enough votes to override vetoes, list the legislation as one of their top consumer priorities.

Williamsport News

By EILEEN EASTERDAY, Phone 986-3481

Taking a couple days off from the daily grind is truly terrific and that's how it was for Amy and me this past weekend. We only went to Chillicothe to be with my mother Mildred Hardman but it was nice, nice, nice. The three of us drove down to Piketon for the Dogwood Festival among other "goofing off" things we found to do. My mother has the greatest green thumb so we shopped for plants for her to nurture to a healthy beginning before I bring them home. I have this yearning for scads and scads of flowers and plants this summer but my thumb has never had much green to it.

The rainy blustery weather cancelled out the planned Cancer Canvass last Friday evening and the volunteers will give it another try soon as the temperature co-operates a bit more and the rain clouds roll away.

Of course with the rain and then the sun comes the coveted mushroom and week ago Sunday Junior Conley's family found something like 200 of the delectable morels. The family has a cabin in the Hocking Hills and they had gone there for two reasons — one was to celebrate Junior's birthday with a family dinner and the other was, naturally, to hunt for mushrooms.

Coldwater, Cincy Teachers Still Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An attorney for the Cincinnati board of education vowed Wednesday to return to Common Pleas Court in the board's fight to get striking teachers back to work.

Nearly half of the district's 3,100 teachers began the third week of their walkout on Wednesday, disrupting classes for 65,000 students.

Meanwhile, teachers in the village of Coldwater in Mercer County with 1,800 students also remained out in a dispute with the board's refusal to renew some contracts.

Teachers returned to their classrooms in Barnesville Wednesday, ending a four-day walkout after the school board offered a two-year contract to sixth grade teacher John Shepard, a seven-year veteran of the system.

Teachers earlier had demanded a continuing contract. The strike affected some 60 teachers in the 1,700-pupil Belmont County district.

In Cincinnati, the 1st District Ohio Court of Appeals Wednesday dismissed an appeal filed by the school board which would have ordered teachers back to work.

The appellate court dismissed the suit after commenting that a previous lower court denial of a temporary restraining order did not constitute a final order and was not appealable.

Hamilton County Common Pleas

Those enjoying the day were Mr. and Mrs. Junior Conley, Ronda and Rodney, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Terflinger all of Five Points, Mrs. Irene Knox of Mt. Sterling, Mr. Raymond Kneese of Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reisinger and Frankie and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pitt of Williamsport.

A sure sign of spring is youngsters out playing ball. Brother and sister Jeff and Tami Fullen were indulging in the spring sport when unfortunately Tami didn't zig as the ball zapped and bonkers! She got popped smack in the nose. Result — one broken nose with a very black eye. Tami and Jeff are the lively images of Steve and Onda Fullen.

Colleen Justice was hostess to canasta club last Tuesday evening with almost as many substitutes as members playing. Prize winners were Marilyn Bush, high (she was subbing for Margene Looney), Pearl Cochenour, traveling, yours truly low, Jackie Hopper, door. Ruth Long subbed for Dorothy Carle, Jeannine Hamman was there for Esther Picklesimer and regular member Mae Litter completed eight.

Contributions continue to come in for the Community Square and they are most welcome. With a present total of $23,163, there is enough to pay the purchase price with a balance to be used toward much needed repairs and renovation. The remainder will by no means be enough but it will certainly be incentive to start.

Latest contributors are: Jerry Cornwell, Ralph Hurley, Wilbur Warner, Williamsport Little League, Paul, Kay, Rodney, Ronda, Ben, Brent Atterholt, Edna H. Several residents of the community gathered at the grounds Thursday evening and picked up a tremendous amount of debris in preparation of mowing the grass.

Revenue Sharing Now Old Hat

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When the House Finance Committee held a hearing earlier this month for public input on how the state should spend federal revenue sharing money, two witnesses showed up.

One of them, Budget and Management Director William W. Wilkins had the same turnout at a hearing he called last January, despite ample advance publicity.

The program, considered a breakthrough in state-federal relations when it began four years ago, is almost taken for granted in 1977.

Although there was considerable concern among state officials late last year when it appeared Congress might not renew the aid, the dollars involved seem almost insignificant when compared to the total state spending package.

Of the $14.4 billion the state presently expects to spend in the two-year fiscal period starting July 1 only about $183.5 million comes from Washington as revenue sharing.

What may appear insignificant, however, has meaning in a tightly constructed budget that anticipates no new or increased taxes.

"It may be small, but I think it would take you about a penny sales to make up for it," says Legislative Budget Officer Richard Sheridan.

Why is it called revenue sharing anyway?

"They are sharing some of their money with us to spend as we want," Wilkins explains. "Their money," of course is in part a return of federal tax dollars paid by Ohioans.

The lack of interest in public hearings is understandable when one considers that Ohio has for the past three years just lumped revenue sharing money into the General Revenue Fund—in effect, the state treasury.

Wilkins tried to change that in Gov. James A. Rhodes' budget last February. He earmarked $5.4 million of the federal money for Department of Natural Resources projects— soil and water conservation, forestry, work on the Lake Erie coastline, and natural areas and preserves.

But House Democrats, a majority, scrapped funding of the projects in a rewritten budget bill and returned the federal money to the General Revenue

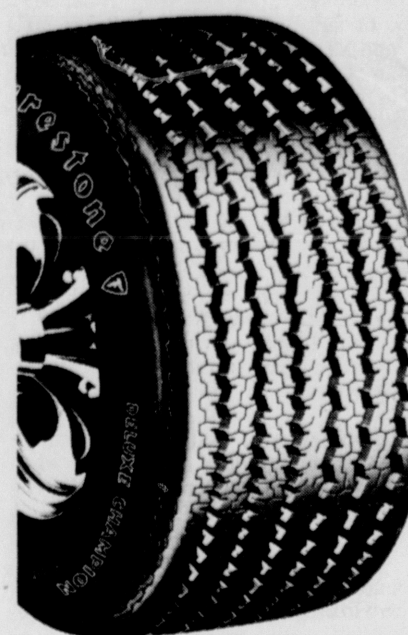

Fund, which is used to pay everyday expenses and keep dollars flowing to mandatory services and programs.

The Senate Finance Committee will hold a revenue sharing hearing next month when the House sends the budget to the upper chamber of the legislature.

Mine Strike In 3rd Day; 16,000 Out

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — As a strike by miners in Ohio and the northern panhandle of West Virginia entered its third day, union leaders were meeting today to discuss ways to end the wildcat walkout.

Most of the 16,000 members of District 6 of the United Mine Workers went out on Tuesday in a dispute over separate issues at four mines in southeastern Ohio.

John Guzek, district president, called a closed meeting of UMW leaders from the 52 local unions at a library here.

The issues involved a foreman allegedly hitting a miner, a foreman allegedly arguing with a miner, a miner demanding a job after he quit a few shifts earlier, and a new absentee program implemented by one firm.

The facilities were at the Franklin No. 25 mine of Consolidated Coal Co. at Cadiz; the Saginaw mine of Oglebay-Norton Co. at St. Clairsville, the North American No. 7 at Clarington, and the Simco deepmine of Peabody Coal Co. at Coshocton.

Guzek traveled to Coshocton on Wednesday to appear at a bail hearing for two local union officers who were being held in contempt of court for allowing the walkout at the Simco deep mine.

Judge William F. Brown of Coshocton County Common Pleas Court forbade a strike in February at the deep mine over the new absentee program.

As a result of this walkout, Brown fined the local $1,000 for the work stoppage, plus $333.33 for each shift after Monday that the miners were out.

He placed the two officers in jail for parts of two days earlier in the week, but released them in order to encourage the miners to return to work. On Wednesday, Brown decided to let the men remain free on their own recognizance while they appealed the contempt citation.

Couple Enjoys Handbuilt Log Cabin

PATASKALA, Ohio (AP) — "You know what I've always wanted," William Phillips mused to his wife last summer. "A log cabin."

She didn't comment and he thought, "well that's the end of that."

Next day at dinner, Mrs. Phillips asked where he'd put a cabin.

"Right out there next to the bean field," he replied. Still no comment.

The third day when they sat down to eat, Mrs. Phillips asked, "Who'd build it?"

"I would," the 69-year-old farmer replied.

"If you think we can do it, I'll help you," she replied.

Now, less than a year later, a sturdy cabin sits across the drive from the Phillips' farm home four miles southwest of this Licking County community.

"We had a lot of fun doing it and will have a lot more fun using it," Phillips said.

He and his wife, Opal, 64, haven't abandoned their farm home for the 16-by-24 foot cabin, but admit to spending a lot of time in it so far this spring.

They did all the work themselves except for building the stone fireplace.

The outside walls are made of used utility poles. Phillips gathered stones from his fields for the fireplace. He figures the entire project cost less than $4,000.

He and his wife of 45 years used a small tractor with a hydraulic lift to maneuver the poles into place. A chain saw saved a lot of energy in notching the poles.

Phillips said he never had built much before but "being a farmer 60 years, you got to learn how to drive a few nails."

The cabin was started in October and wooden shingles were in place before winter.

This spring they put roughsawn cedar on inside walls and built a small loft. The cabin is furnished with a wood-burning stove, a home-made table and Mrs. Phillips moved a rocker and some other furniture from their house to the cabin.

Most of the couple's family of five children—four daughters and a son—and their ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild, live nearby and are sharing the cabin fun.

The cabin builders had only one disagreement.

"He wanted a dirt floor, but I said no," explained Mrs. Phillips. She won and the cabin has a plank floor.

Electricity hasn't been hooked up but Phillips ran an extension cord from a nearby building so they can listen to records in the cabin.

There's still work to be done. Phillips has some cracks to caulk and he wants to add a porch.

But the couple said it is ready for its main purpose—a lot of sitting.

Secretaries List Most Ridiculous Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — The next time your boss has you feeling blue, think about the secretary who has to dash to the corner newsstand every day to get a refund for the newspaper her boss just finished reading.

Or the secretary who had to chase all over Manhattan for chocolate covered marshmallow cookies for her boss and his clients.

Another secretary had to pick up the boss' wife at the hospital along with the couple's newborn baby; the boss was too busy for the occasion.

Those are three of about 100 entries in the Women Office Workers contest of most ridiculous personal chores performed by women here for their bosses.

The 10 most ridiculous chore entries, including the top winner who will get a free lunch on WOW, will be announced tonight at an open house at the group's headquarters.

The group, which represents clerical workers, secretaries, bookkeepers, keypunch operators, typists, receptionists, clerks and cashiers, also were to hold a lunchtime rally today in Manhattan to commemorate Women Office Workers Day as part of National Secretaries Week.

Carol Feeney, a staff member of WOW, said that the secretary who had to get the refund on The Wall Street Journal after her boss read it encountered some problems.

"At first the newsstand man objected, but then he took pity on the secretary," she explained.

Some other chores listed by the entrants:

—Spend two days with temporary help to write out Christmas cards and stamp them;

—Clean the boss' false teeth;

—Spread mayonnaise on the leaves of the boss' plants;

—Put drops in his ears or eyes;

—Get scolded for not knowing the voices of the women who call so as not to confuse the boss' wife and girlfriend; or —Receive a call in New York from the boss in Maryland who says, "My car broke down. Get me a tow truck."

3-Pronged Energy Plan Promoted

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The answer to the energy problem does not lie in conservation alone, but in a three-pronged approach, says the board chairman of the American Electric Power Co.

W.S. White Jr. offered AEP's 70th annual shareholders meeting Wednesday three parts to the solution:

- Balance among available energy sources;
- Reconciling energy developments and environmental protection;
- Requirements for financing energy resource development.

"A logical policy, and one we hope Congress will adopt, is to accept the need for growth in energy supply, limit the growth of energy usage to the extent possible through conservation, and look to electric power based upon coal and nuclear materials to play an increasingly important role in the expansion of energy supply," he said.

White told shareholders at the first annual meeting to be held outside New York that if Congress mandates the installation of stack-gas scrubbers on power plants, "it will place a severe burden on the consumer of electric power...and may jeopardize efforts to solve the energy problems as it relates to electric energy."

"...the growth of electric power must be largely dependent on coal and nuclear materials for at least the remainder of this century," White said.

The Scioto PTO met April 18. After the business meeting was over, Mrs. Gregory presented a musical program, "Sounds of Spring". This consisted of the Kindergarten through the third grade. It was a very entertaining program after which refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Our sympathy goes to the Albright family on the passing of Mrs. Etta Mae Albright. She was a sister to the late Loring Albright.

Have you noticed the razing of the Dick Durrett residence? He is making way for a new home. That had been the former Newt Peters home — before him it was his father's. Previous owner before Dick were Orren and Polly Lawless. It was a rather antique home in our town and it held many memories for those who lived in it.

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Monday at 10:00 it's time for another story time for two- and three-year-olds, so plan a trip to the public library with your little ones. You'll find that this week's new children's books are geared to help pre-schoolers grow in mental and emotional maturity.

Hefter's "The Strawberry Book of Shapes," "The Strawberry Word Book," and "The Strawberry Book of Colors" are pre-primers designed to promote reading readiness skills. Likeable characters and full-page illustrations bursting with color add a note of reckless gaiety to these learning tools.

For the curious youngster who wants to find out about those thingamajigs and gizmos in the doctor's office, you might recommend "Doctors' Tools." Here some of the basic instruments found in an examining room or laboratory are labelled and simply explained.

"Big Sister, Little Brother" and "Being Alone, Being Together," both by Terry Berger, are simple picture book essays on feelings. Large photographs do most of the telling. The written text (one or two lines per page, large 30-point type, simply vocabulary) can be easily digested by new readers.

In "I Love My Mother" author Paul Zindel displays a small boy's world with his mother, in which his father is conspicuously absent. Not until the last two pages does the reader definitely know that this absence is permanent. On the final page the boy says "When I tell her (Mother) I miss my father, she hugs me and says he misses me too. I love my mother. I really do." Opposite is a melancholy picture of the mother embracing the weeping child with a shadow of the father in the background. A realistic and not very cheery ending, but for children living — for whatever reason — in a one-parent home, it may be reassuring to know that other children have experienced and survived the absence of a parent.

Whether your child is looking for information or simply a few hours of entertainment, our books and materials can help fill his needs and help him grow. Come in soon!

Dirt Band Schedules Russian Concerts

DENVER (AP) — The Dirt Band, which has played before audiences throughout the nation, is taking its blend of rock, bluegrass and country music on the Tbilisi, Yerevan and Riga circuit.

The band will arrive in Moscow on Saturday for a 28-day, 24-concert schedule, the first American rock 'n' roll group to tour the Soviet Union.

"We've been told people over there are very subdued, not laid back, but restricted," said John McEuen, the band's bearded banjo player. "Here, we go out and hit a few bars of 'Cosmic Cowboy' and people know what it is. That won't be true (in Russia)."

The Colorado-based band, formerly known as the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, includes among its hits "Buy For Me the Rain," "Mr. Bojangles," and the album, "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?"

Soviet officials have printed programs with lyrics to all the songs to be performed during the two-hour concerts.

McEuen said the lyrics to "The Battle of New Orleans," could be "a little weird" in Russian. Translation of another Dirt Band song, the Cajun classic "Diggy Liggy Li," could be even more difficult, he said.

The tour is sponsored by the State Department's Office of International Arts Affairs.

Other rock groups such as Chicago and The Doobie Brothers were considered for the tour, a State Department spokeswoman said. But The Dirt Band was chosen because it plays "a blend of sounds the Soviets would like to hear. A harder rock group would be very difficult to present in the Soviet Union at this time," she said.

McEuen and three band members left Denver Tuesday for briefings in Washington. With them was singer Jan Garrett of another Colorado group, Liberty, who is making the tour because the Soviets asked for a female vocalist. Another Dirt Band regular, Jackie Clark, will join the group in Washington.

After performances in Moscow, the band will appear in Tbilisi, Yerevan, Riga and Leningrad before returning home May 25.

Between concerts, McEuen said, the band members hope to make a record in Russia, do a television show in Moscow, and present seminars on American pop music at universities and conservatories.

Boy Saved From Sewer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When 2-year-old Matthew Verburg skipped out on his afternoon nap, he had four hours to weigh the consequences while he waited to be rescued from a storm sewer.

Cindy Verburg said her adventurous son, who was rescued by her 17-year-old brother-in-law, was bruised and scared, but otherwise uninjured.

She said she and her husband, Douglas, were also napping when Matthew climbed out of his crib sometime after 2 p.m. Tuesday.

"We found him gone and the front door standing wide open," she said. "We were scared to death. We didn't know where he was."

Mrs. Verburg said at one point the neighborhood search team included an airplane and a dog.

"We figured he was down a sewer because the little girl across the street said he was playing with a ball and we saw a ball at the bottom of the sewer," she said.

About 6 p.m., one of the searchers spotted the reflection of Matthew's red shirt. His uncle, Brad Verburg of Vandalia, climbed down the sewer and freed the child 30 minutes later.

"I just can't tell you how kind all those people and police were about this," Mrs. Verburg said.

The stereotype was invented by William Ged in Scotland in 1725.

3 Attempts Made To Cap Oil Leak; All Are Failures

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Troubleshooters failed in three attempts today to choke off the runaway well in the North Sea in what was described as a severe setback.

Phillips Petroleum officials also disclosed that a "blowout preventer" had mistakenly been placed upside down on the wellhead before last week's accident.

Phillips officials acknowledged that today's failure to shut off the well was a severe setback in their efforts to save the North Sea from further massive pollution.

The oil company said that the half moon-shaped steel discs called "blind rams" that were used today to try to close off the well had been tested to withstand only 4,000 pounds per square inch of pressure, but that the force of the oil spurting to the surface from the seabed was estimated at 4,350 pounds of pressure per square inch.

Each time the seven-man team put the rams in place today, the oil pressure forced them open and continued to spurt crude oil into the sea.

Robert Archambeault, Phillips director of engineering for the midsea Ekofisk oil field, told a news conference about the misplacement last week of the device designed to stop such blowouts.

"It's a good possibility that the well could have been sealed if the blowout preventer had not been installed in an inverted position sometime last week," he said.

By noon, Norwegian officials estimated that 6½ million gallons of oil had gushed from the well since it blew out Friday night.

Archambeault, of Dayton, Ohio, had

Archbishop, Pope Paul VI Hold Meeting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Donald Coggan, met Pope Paul VI today for talks on Christian unity. However, Vatican sources cautioned that the goal of uniting the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches and their 600 million followers was many years away.

The meeting between the 67-year-old spiritual leader of the world's 60 million Anglicans and the 79-year-old pontiff of the 600 million Roman Catholics was the third since Archbishop Geoffrey Fisher and Pope John XXIII met in 1960.

It follows conclusion of an eight-year study by a joint Anglican-Roman Catholic International Commission which prepared three documents outlining many points of agreement as well as basic differences.

The key stumbling block to unity of the two churches is the Anglicans' refusal to recognize the infallibility of the pope, proclaimed in 1870, and their refusal to recognize his primacy over a unified church, the issue over which King Henry VIII founded the Church of England in 1534.

Other unresolved issues are mixed marriages and the ordination of women as priests by the U.S. Episcopal Church and the Anglican Church in Canada.

told reporters Wednesday night that if the machinery used today failed, the crew might try to winch a four-ton capping device over the gusher.

"It's difficult, but it's been done before," he said.

The crew, stationed on a nearby barge, boarded the runaway Bravo oil rig at dawn in good weather to begin what was hoped would be the final phase of the capping operation. The rig is situated 170 miles southwest of Norway.

The blind rams were forced over the spurting wellhead by hydraulic pressure. A company spokesman said after the first attempt that the blind rams had closed for about one minute, then reopened under the force of the gas that is pushing the oil up from 10,000 feet below.

PPG Pours $99.3 Million Into Ohio Economy In 1976

PITTSBURGH — More than $99.3 million was contributed to the Ohio economy during 1976 by the production and technical operations of PPG Industries, the company has announced.

PPG produces industrial and agricultural chemicals at Barberton, various industrial and automotive coatings at Delaware and Cleveland, automotive and specialty tempered glass at Crestline and synthetic resins at Circleville.

The firm's Chemical Division also operates a technical center at Barberton.

More than half of the economic contribution in 1976 came from wages and salaries of more than $51.4 million paid to nearly 3,300 employees.

Purchases from more than 2,200 suppliers in the Ohio plant areas were nearly $25.7 million, while utilities and transportation costs for the facilities surpassed $18.7 million.

Other expenses included state and local taxes, plant maintenance and environmental costs and various philanthropic contributions.

The nation's leading flat glass manufacturer, PPG also is a major producer of chemicals, coatings and resin, fiberglass and fabricated plastics. It has 78 production locations in the world, 43 of them in the United States.

PPG previously reported net earnings in 1976 of $151.5 million on sales of $2.25 billion. The net earnings represent a return of 6.7 per cent on sales. Wages, salaries and employee benefits amounted to 28.5 per cent of sales. Materials and services totaled 55.5 per cent of sales.

Circleville Nipped By Greenfield, 11-10

A late inning rally by Circleville fell one-run short as the Red and Black dropped an 11-10 win to visiting Greenfield in a South Central Ohio League clash Wednesday.

After McClain exploded for seven runs in the top of the fifth to grab an 11-5 lead, the Roundtowners battled back with two runs in the bottom of the sixth, added two more in the seventh but couldn't push across the marker they needed to knot the count.

Brian Fath and Mearle Logan shared the mound for the Tigers. They gave up a total of 21 hits, three walks and fanned one.

Robinson and Beatty were on the hill for McClain. They gave up a total of 15 hits, four walks and whiffed five.

The Circleville squad had jumped out to a 5-0 lead after two innings but were unable to hold it.

"We were very disappointed to be ahead 5-0 and get beat," Circleville coach Tom Cole stated. "We let down and became quite inconsistent. Anytime you get 15 hits and score 10 runs, you should win the ball game."

Bo Barthelmas belted a homer for the Red and Black, Gary Combs slammed a double and three singles, Mearle Logan rapped three singles, Bob Fuller, Brett Allen and Eric Berger each cracked a double while Brad Allison, Jo Mogan and Jeff Meena each had a single.

Cole, Easter and Miller each had three hits to pace Greenfield.

Circleville is now 2-3 overall, 1-3 in SCOL play and will be at Miami Trace Friday and at Wilmington Saturday for a doubleheader.

Braves Drop Clippers In 10 Inning Game

The Columbus Clippers managed to take the Richmond Braves to ten innings Wednesday night before the Braves' Bob Beall connected at the plate to bring home Dale Murphy with the winning run.

It was the fourth loss in a row for the Clippers but the fifth in a row for the red-hot Braves.

Catcher Steve Nicosia got the first Columbus hit when he singled in the fifth.

The Clipper sixth had the fans on their feet. Pitcher Lowell Palmer walked to start things off. Centerfielder Alberto Lois advanced Palmer to third with his smash. Gary Hargis then brought home Palmer with a single and Lois came home on a Mike Easler hit to deep right. Big Bob Oliver sacrificed to let Hargis cross the plate. To cap things off in the sixth, Ken Macha, just back from the Pirates, drove a ball deep to left center and stretched it into a triple. The score after six stood 4-3 for the Braves.

The Clippers came to their half of the ninth needing a run to tie. They loaded the sacks on a Mike Edwards walk, a Berra single to center, and a walk by pinch-hitter Ron Mitchell. Lois was next man at the plate, and he chipped a grounder that was fielded by the Braves' first baseman. The throw to the plate for the force was wide, and the Clippers were facing a tie ball game. A squeeze play with Berra racing home failed when Gary Hargis failed to connect at the plate.

In their half of the tenth, Beall and Murphy connected for their winning margin. After the run had been scored, the Clippers dazzled the 5,186 fans at Family Night with a Berra to Oliver to Edwards triple play.

The two International League squads will pair off again in the final game of the series tonight at 7:45 in Franklin County Stadium. The gates open at 6:30 p.m.

Friday, Saturday, and Sunday the Clippers visit Tidewater, then play three at Richmond before returning for a four-day home stand with Rochester starting May 5.

A-C Aces Stopped By Fisher, 6-0

Amanda-Clearcreek traveled to Fisher Catholic and ran into a two-hit pitching performance by Phil Underwood and dropped a 6-0 decision to the Irish in a Mid State battle Wednesday.

Mark Bitler and Willie Crites teamed up on the hill for the Aces. They gave up a total of five hits, six walks and fanned five.

Lee Chattos slammed a double and Gary Frye singled to account for the Aces' hits. Kelly Lackrone rapped a double to pace Fisher.

Amanda-Clearcreek will be at Liberty Union Tuesday in the opener of the Class A Sectionals.

Logan Elm Girls Lose Fray, 10-5

Logan Elms girls dropped a 10-5 decision to visiting Pickerington.

Babe Stump and Marie Goodchild shared the mound for the Braves while Longley hurled for Pickerington.

Diane Martin rapped a triple for the Braves, Annette Roof belted three singles, Diane Weaver and Cheryl Gabriel each had two hits while Brenda Bell, Jackie Cave, Krista Gifford, Babe Stump and Marie Goodchild each ripped a single.

The Braves reserves defeated Pickerington 2-1 with Marie Goodchild hurling the win.

Darcy Ebert slammed a triple, Carla Roof rapped two singles and Donna Karr added a single.

Logan Elm will be at Liberty Union 4:15 p.m. today.

Rochester Trips Tidewater; 9-7

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a hitter's night in the International baseball league Wednesday. Infielder Taylor Duncan slammed a two-out, two-run homer over the left field fence in the bottom of the eleventh to give Rochester a 9-7 victory over Tidewater.

Pawtucket pounded out 17 hits en route to a 13-2 drubbing of Toledo and in other International League action, Richmond squeaked by Columbus, 6-5, in ten innings and Charleston beat Syracuse, 5-4.

Twins Scuttle Mariners, 5-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Bill Campbell's treasure map led to Boston, but the Minnesota Twins still turn to their bullpen for some riches of their own.

Things looked bleak for the Twins when Campbell, the American League Fireman of the Year in 1976 with 17 victories and 20 saves, played out his option and signed with the Boston Red Sox, who made him a rich man. But Tom Johnson is doing the same things Campbell did for Minnesota while Campbell is having his problems with his new club.

Although he was scored on Wednesday for the first time in seven appearances this season, Johnson notched his third consecutive triumph, in Minnesota's 5-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners, with Butch Wynegar's two-run single capping a three-run seventh-inning rally.

The Twins have won three straight and nine of their last 11 games and are tied for the lead in the American League West, with the surprising Oakland A's, who came from five runs behind and beat the California Angels 7-5.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Milwaukee Brewers downed the Boston Red Sox 4-

2, the New York Yankees edged the Baltimore Orioles 4-3, the Detroit Tigers outlasted the Chicago White Sox 10-9, the Texas Rangers blanked the Kansas City Royals 5-0 and the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Cleveland Indians 6-5 in 12 innings.

A's 7, Angels 5
Home runs by Manny Sanguillen and Earl Williams helped Oakland overcome an early five-run deficit. Trailing 5-4, the A's took the lead in the fifth inning when rookie Mitchell Page singled and Sanguillen hit his first American League home run off Paul Hartzell. Williams provided an insurance run in the seventh with his fourth homer.

Brewers 4, Red Sox 2
Robin Yount singled home the go-ahead run in a two-run eighth inning and Sixto Lezcano belted a two-run double in the fourth as the Brewers boosted their record to 10-5, their most victories ever in April. Yount's single followed a walk and a sacrifice, and he later scored on an error and Dan Thomas' single.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3
Reggie Jackson's second sacrifice fly of the game scored Willie Randolph with the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning, giving the Yankees their seventh triumph in the last eight games. Randolph reached base five times on three walks and a pair of doubles and scored three runs.

Tigers 10, White Sox 9
Rookie Steve Kemp broke an 8-8 tie with a two-run single in the sixth inning and the Tigers held on despite five Chicago home runs by Richie Zisk — his seventh, most in the league — Royce Stillman, Eric Soderholm, Chet Lemon and Oscar Gamble. However, Detroit's Jason Thompson hit a grand slam and Milt May also connected for the Tigers.

Rangers 5, Royals 0
Juan Beniquez, batting .150, hit his first home run in two years and Bert Blyleven fired a seven-hitter for his sixth career shutout against Kansas City. Beniquez connected off Dennis Leonard in the third inning following a walk and a hit batsman.

Cardinals Slaughter Cubs

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

John Denny of the St. Louis Cardinals is the first pitcher in the major leagues to win five games this season, but it is no surprise — he has had more than a little help from his friends.

In his five mound appearances, the Cardinals have backed Denny with 52 runs. Wednesday he was the beneficiary of 19 hits and 21 runs as the Cards pounded six Chicago pitchers for a 21-3 triumph over the Cubs.

"I'd like to think the guys have a lot of confidence in me and they'll swing their bats for me," said Denny. "This year I think they're averaging 10 runs a game for me, and that's nice."

The 24-year-old right-hander, who was 11-9 last season but led the National League in earned run average, credits his development as a pitcher to a more mature attitude he has acquired in the past year, when he says he began to understand the meaning of Christianity.

"Over the last year I've had a lot of spiritual experiences," said Denny. "Through the help of teammates like Bob Forsch and Don Kessinger, I've accepted Jesus Christ. He comes first; pitching comes second."

In other National League games Wednesday, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-1, the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Philadelphia Phillies 7-3, the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 3-2, the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the San Diego Padres 7-6, and the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Houston Astros 3-2.

Hector Cruz and Ted Simmons wielded the big bats for the Cards, driving in four runs apiece. St. Louis scored four runs in the first inning and two in the second, then broke it open with eight runs in the fifth. Simmons and Lou Brock each drove in two runs in the big inning.

Reds 3, Braves 1

Pat Zachry allowed just five hits in dealing the Braves their fifth straight loss as Cincinnati completed a sweep of its three-game series at Atlanta.

"Now it will all level off," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson, confident his team has broken out of its early season slump. "We should play .700 ball for a while, I think."

Dodgers 7, Padres 6

Ron Cey, who has hit safely in all 17 of Los Angeles' games this season, tied the major league record of 27 runs batted in for the month of April with two against the Padres on a single and a homer.

The mark was set by Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh in 1971 and equaled by Reggie Jackson, then with Oakland, in 1974.

Pirates 7, Phillies 3

Pittsburgh posted its fifth victory in a row, behind Bruce Kison, who held the Phils scoreless until the ninth. Dave Parker hit two doubles, driving in two runs and scoring one, leading the Pirates' attack. Philadelphia's record dropped to 5-9.

Expos 3, Mets 2

Dave Kingman's third-inning error opened the way for three unearned runs for Montreal, the last two on Ellis Valentine's homer, and Steve Rogers made them stand up with a six-hitter, striking out nine.

Giants 3, Astros 2

Darrell Evans belted a two-run homer in the eighth inning, lifting the Giants past Houston and tagging the loss on J.R. Richard, who had San Francisco scoreless over the first five innings.

Steinbrenner, Finley Engineer Trade

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a carefully structured trade between two of baseball's most skilled flesh dealers. George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees and Charlie Finley of the Oakland A's prepared to swap players.

The matter was clear-cut. Steinbrenner could have Oakland right-hander Mike Torrez if he agreed to surrender pitcher Dock Ellis, infielder Marty Perez and minor league outfielder Larry Murray.

he stole 59 bases last year at West Haven" of the Eastern League.

New York Manager Billy Martin got something too, it seems. A little more aggravation from his boss. The two have not seen eye-to-eye on a number of matters.

"I guess they (Ellis and Perez) both went because they're unsigned," he said solemnly. "I hate to lose them. I didn't make the trade. You'll have to ask George Steinbrenner."

Things bogged down a bit over Murray. "Steinbrenner offered me $200,000 if we wouldn't take Murray," recalled the A's owner. "I turned it down, and I think that's important because some people are saying I'm trying to dismantle this team to get cash. That's 100 per cent untrue."

Fine. All was agreed. What remained was a little added attraction, so Steinbrenner "threw in two choice seats for the Kentucky Derby. He's going to enter his horse—I think the name is Steve's Friend—in the race tomorrow," said Finley.

Claim Group Seeks Ouster Of Woody

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A disgruntled group of influential Ohio State alumni is spearheading a drive to force the retirement of Buckeye football coach Woody Hayes, the Michigan State News reported Thursday.

The story in the State News, the student newspaper at Michigan State, comes as the NCAA and Big Ten conduct inquiries into recruiting practices of Hayes and his staff.

The State News quoted one influential OSU alumnus as saying "the drive to get Hayes to retire actually started last summer."

"Many were fed up with his hurting the university's integrity by hitting people and such," the Columbus-based source said.

He continued, "It reached the point last summer that a group of us made arrangements to charter a plane for the first game and fly over the stadium with a banner which read 'Impeach Woody.'"

"But when the university administration got wind of our idea, they urged us to let them handle it in a more professional manner," he explained.

The OSU alumnus added that, "I don't think Woody will be the coach at OSU next season. The victory over Colorado (in the Orange Bowl) may have saved his job for awhile, but it's time for his retirement."

Another source, who the paper said was close to Hayes and his football staff for several years, confirmed there is an alumni movement to force Hayes into early retirement.

Meanwhile, Dan Heinlen, director of the OSU alumni association, downplayed the idea of such a scheme, saying, "That is honestly the first I've heard of it and I usually have a pulse on the latest rumors."

Hayes, acting athletic director Hugh Hindman and outgoing athletic director Ed Weaver were not available for comment.

Reds Capture 3rd Straight

ATLANTA (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, off to a stumbling start in defense of their baseball championship, have recovered their stride against Atlanta, but manager Sparky Anderson says it wasn't the Braves, it was just inevitable.

"It would have been whoever we had to play," Anderson said after the Reds completed a three-game sweep of the Braves with a 3-1 victory Wednesday night.

"The time had arrived, and it didn't matter who the opponent was," he said.

"I don't think the team mattered," agreed George Foster. "It was just the law of averages; we always knew we were better than a cellar team."

The Reds, now 7-10, remained in the cellar in the National League West, but Anderson seemed sure they were headed back to the top.

"I still say we'll win 90 games or more," Anderson said. "I don't know if that will be enough, for the Dodgers may win 125."

The Reds had to strain a bit harder to win Wednesday than they did the previous two outings.

Ken Griffey knocked in one first-inning run, then scored on Dan Driessen's single for the Reds.

The Braves got their run in the second when Jeff Burroughs scored on a sacrifice fly by Rod Gilbreath.

Driessen scored Cincinnati's third run in the fourth on a single by Johnny Bench, and the rest of the game belonged to the Reds' Pat Zachry, who pitched a five-hitter to even his record at 2-2.

It was the second complete game of the season for Zachry, the only Cincinnati pitcher to go the distance so far this year.

World Team Tennis Alive, Kicking

NEW YORK (AP) — Any resemblance to the game of tennis, living or dead, is purely coincidental.

The court is without lines. It looks like one of grandpa's quilts with patches of blue, green, red and brown. The sport is played in indoor arenas where the most insipid lob — as in the case of the Garden's Felt Forum — is likely to break a light bulb.

In scoring, you never hear the traditional words, "love," "deuce" or "advantage." Instead, it's simple "1-2-3-4," just the way Baby Ray counts his ducks in the kindergarten primer.

Players wear flashy uniforms with numbers on their backs as they do in baseball and football. Basic white is taboo. So is the "Quiet Please" rule. Fans are urged to bring horns, bells and other noise makers and kick up as much of a fuss as they please.

They call it World Team Tennis. When it was born in 1973 and formally unveiled in 1974, critics called it a circus. They insisted it couldn't last.

It was an aberration — neither tennis nor an acceptable franchise sport with which its architects hoped to compete for the spectator dollar.

Today, April 28, 1977, WTT is alive and kicking. Prophecies of its early demise proved premature. Indications are that team tennis — re-juggled, refined and re-inoculated with blue ribbon talent — is here to stay. For a good while, at least.

terest in two other teams — the Golden Gaters and the Philadelphia Soviets, the first USSR team to compete in an American sports league.

While most of the franchises are losing money, King says attendance was up 67 per cent last year over 1975 and forecasts a 50 per cent increase in 1977. Under a new commissioner, Earl "Butch" Buchholz, former U.S. Davis Cup star, the league is launching a multi-million-dollar promotional campaign and increasing television exposure.

The WTT's prestige was bolstered with Cleveland's $1.5 million grab of Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, putting him in the league with such stars as Ms. King, Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Ilie Nastase and Rod Laver.

The WTT adopted simplified scoring and the patch-work court (green and blue service areas, brown backcourt, red alleys), King says, to give it an identity.

The circuit, however, has cooled on its original "anything goes" concept to appeal to the average basketball and hockey fans.

Fitzgerald Slated For ASCS Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has decided on a South Dakotan to head one of Agriculture's most important farm agencies, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

A Bergland aide said Wednesday that Ray Fitzgerald, a farmer from Aurora County, S.D., will soon be announced as administrator of the agency. The job pays $47,500 a year.

Fitzgerald, 53, was a deputy administrator of ASCS during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations of the 1960s. The agency handles major farm programs, including price support operations for wheat, corn, cotton and dairy products.

In a related move, Bergland also is screening applicants for a number of jobs as heads of state ASCS offices. These are executive directors who run office operations at the state levels.

Last Friday Bergland sent termination notices to 19 ASCS state directors who were appointed by the Nixon and Ford administrations. Normally, these are political appointees who resign when there is a political change in administrations.

But Bergland says that under the Republicans state executive directors were reclassified as so-called "schedule A" employees which gives them limited job protection under civil service if they are veterans or have held federal civil service jobs before.

Betty Ford Home From Hospital

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Betty Ford has been released from Eisenhower Medical Center after six days of tests to determine the cause of a pinched spinal nerve.

Greg Willard, an aide to the former first family, said diagnostic test results have been compiled but he did not give the results.

He said Mrs. Ford, 59, had suffered nausea and discomfort from the testing procedures but has fully recovered.

She has suffered from a pinched nerve in her neck for about 12 years but the condition was aggravated during a recent trip to Michigan, he said.

Use The Classifieds

Bergland told the Newspaper Farm Editors of America here this week that the 19 he fired, plus one who retired, did not have such protection. Those jobs will be filled by Democratic appointees.

Besides the 19 fired from their state ASCS jobs, 14 state directors of Farmers Home Administration offices also were terminated by Bergland for the same reasons.

UNION, Neb. (AP) — He knows just about all 280 of the people in this town, and all their comings and goings, so when a hearse drove by, slowly, with its lights on, Chester Chappell was puzzled.

"I wonder who that could be?" he said. He fell silent for a moment, then smiled through his scraggly, tobacco stained beard.

"They use to smuggle whiskey that way. Put it in a hearse and drive it right down the highway. That was during the time you couldn't buy legal whiskey."

Chester Chappell is as central a figure in this village as the red brick firehouse — he remembers when it was a harness shop — or the Wander-In beer joint and pool hall, the stone steps of which provide the vantage point where this rumpled old man of 70 gets his daily view of the world.

Customers at the Wander-In greet him cordially, school children call out "Hi, Ches!" as they hurry by, men in overalls wave from passing pickup trucks.

If no one chooses to chat with him he sits silently without complaint. When the day is done, when all the children have gone home, when the shop doors are closed and locked, when the last train has been noted and its freight cars counted, Chester Chappell climbs the hill to his windowless hovel.

"It ain't the best place to live, but it will do me. It was an old jailhouse at one time. The town knows I'm here but there is no rent on it or nothing. I carry my own water and I carry my wood and I make out all right."

In the morning he will be back on the stone steps, observing and reminiscing with anyone who will listen.

"I've worked all around. I worked in the rock quarry and loaded trucks by hand. I farmed. I put up bundles and shocked grain for $3 a day. Wasn't any big money in those days.

"I cut wood. I cut off my finger in a buzz saw cutting wood. Didn't even feel it. I went over to Jenny Moore's bar in Nehawka and got a big nip and it didn't even bother me."

"I worked all up in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Just took what jobs I could get. I hopped trains and went south to work too. Some trainmen would let you ride and some wouldn't. You had to know which."

"Those were hard times but they weren't all bad times. I kind of enjoyed just taking off and not saying nothing, coming back when I chose. I've always been alone. I never married."

The hearse returned, lights off, and suddenly in the middle of the street turned around and returned to the cemetery.

"Forgot the flowers," Chester Chappell said with authority. "Couldn't be anything else. That's the second time I've seen that happen. But I still can't figure out who died."

The hearse returned a second time. It was filled with flowers.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In one of TV's periodic navel inspections, CBS News tonight looks back at network television of the 1950s in a two-hour show, "When Television Was Young," reported by Charles Kuralt.

It's a sharper-than-usual memory tour of TV in that it goes beyond the usual collection of drama and comedy highlights and self-serving salutes to them good old black-and-white days.

Sure, it has its share of Ernie Kovacs clips, quick glimpses of young struggling thespians like Charlton Heston, the late James Dean, Jack Lemmon and Grace Kelly going about their dramatic business.

But it also goes into the early days of TV news, including the use of government-supplied and government-narrated film which then was aired under the guise of news, not propaganda.

And it recalls the big quiz show scandals, using House testimony to illustrate how some contestants on CBS' "64,000 Question" got answers to the big and lesser questions in advance.

Alas, that is only a recitation of quiz show history, not an attempt to see if such scandals can occur today in the daytime and twilight world of game shows, as they're now called.

The program also dwells on the sordid 1950s practice of blacklisting, when frightened networks, advertisers and individuals denied work to artists accused by anti-Communist zealots of Communist sympathies.

Kuralt cites a few examples of blacklist victims, among them actor Philip Loeb of "The Goldbergs" and dancer Paul Draper, who did a quick tapdance number on the late Ed Sullivan's variety show on CBS.

But vagueness flaws Kuralt's narrative when he notes that "in the eyes of some people Loeb was either a Communist or belonged to a Communist front." And when he says Draper's career on TV in the United States ended because "somebody had said Draper was a Communist."

Who were these mysterious somebodies? No specifics are advanced, even though Kuralt later notes that "Red Channels," a list of supposed Communist sympathizers, was given 4,000 key TV and advertising folk.

"The unstated purpose (of the book) was to scare executives," he says. "It did. If your name was in 'Red Channels,' you were professionally dead for years."

Valuable perspective also could have come in interviews with network and advertising executives (no such interviews are in the show) who went along with blacklisting — provided one could be found, of course.

Baby Fights Lack Of Immunity

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A baby who spent her first 13 months isolated from the world because she was born without natural defenses against disease is still hospitalized but making progress.

The 17-month-old child, known only as Baby Penny because her parents want anonymity, has been out of isolation for the last four months now and is doing well, says one of her doctors.

Penny was born with a deficient

Computer Bill Backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The House Commerce and Labor Committee recommended passage Tuesday night of a bill designed to protect Ohioans from computer age technology in the supermarket.

The bill requires retail grocery outlets switching to computerized pricing to continue to mark prices in Arabic numerals on individual items — with the exception of some small items.

Rep. Sherrod Brown, D-61 Mansfield, reintroduced the bill this year after having a similar measure vetoed at the last session by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Rhodes apparently subscribed to contentions of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, which is still fighting the legislation, that it would preclude stores from saving labor costs which otherwise could be passed along to consumers.

Brown and other supporters said individual pricing is an aid to the elderly and uneducated, and that the simple posting of prices on supermarket shelves — as proposed in the computer setup is ineffective and prone to error.

Use of the computer system involves the printing of coded lines on food packages which cause the price to be run up when scanned by a light device at the checkout counter.

It does offer the consumer a detailed printout of the items he has purchased, the weight or volume, and the price, for checking against errors.

thymus, a gland in the throat that helps the body fight off disease. Within 24 hours of birth, she was put in a glass and plastic cubicle to prevent any germs from reaching her.

Now she lives in the pediatric ward at the University of Arizona Medical Center as doctors continue watching to make sure she builds normal immunities to disease.

"She has done remarkably well," says pediatrician James F. Jones. "She has had a couple of illnesses, common virus infections. She had a little more trouble with them than the normal person would. But we didn't do anything different and she recovered."

Even the most common virus could have killed Penny before December.

That was when she became the fourth baby in the world known to have undergone a new treatment to help build defenses against disease.

She was injected with a laboratory culture grown from tissue taken from a normal baby's thymus. Somehow, doctors say they are not exactly sure what makes it work, the injection helps the body build immunities.

The injection worked on Penny; her body produced some of the antibodies needed to fight off the virus she contracted after being brought out of isolation.

"Her reaction to those viruses was not typical, but she still fought them off," he says.

Now that she has established at least some immunities to more common ailments, such as colds and flu, doctors want her to build them against more dangerous diseases.

She has received her second series of regular childhood vaccinations for polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and other diseases, Jones says. Tests showed that the first series was successful in helping her to build normal immunities.

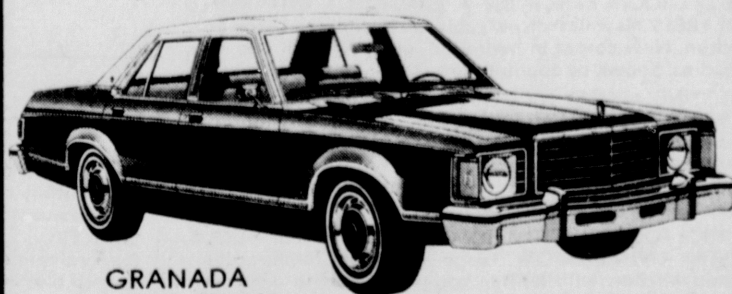

If the second series is successful, she will be able to go home, possibly in about a month, he says. Meanwhile, Penny's parents visit her regularly, playing with her the way they were unable to during her first year.

In that time, her only contact with other humans was through plastic gloves attached to her germ-free cubicle.

Penny's lack of direct human contact for the first 13 months of her life does not seem to have caused any psychological or emotional problems, Jones says.

Penny's parents have two normal children, but lost two others shortly after their births to the same disease — called severe combined immune deficiency — that afflicted Penny.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Avoid a tendency toward self-deception. See persons and situations in a realistic light. The Aries usually does, but even he can be misled at times. And, right now, certain aspects of a dilemma are not clear.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Moderation should be your keyword now. Don't try to do a dozen things at one time - no matter how energetic you feel. Look for a pleasant surprise in the p.m.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Take nothing for granted and avoid jumping to conclusions. What seems a certainty could prove otherwise. One more admonition: Don't try to force issues.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You may have to take some unusual steps to attain a cherished goal but, for you, that should prove highly interesting. Romantic matters favored.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): A good day for finalizing agreements. Some unusual background activity will provide the spark that hurries matters through more quickly than expected.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Take the conservative path where long-range projects are concerned. A potential partner who promises much may not be in a position to carry out his promises.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): A piece of good news could be the forerunner of new advantages in the future. If traveling, for either business or pleasure, day should be a great success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Mars, exceptionally propitious, makes this a fine day for conducting business negotiations, concluding financial transactions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Good planetary influences encourage a power-driven, gradually speeded-up schedule. Gains indicated through unusual ideas and magnanimous gestures toward associates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Check tendencies toward recklessness and irresponsibility. Listen well, take in others' ideas, then your own will come through more clearly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Shun needless controversy, but be firm in maintaining principles, nevertheless. Be careful not to step out of line or go to extremes in any activity.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You have more at work for you than you may realize. Use skills smartly, carefully. Keep abreast of trends, unexpectedly changing situations.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely active person - both mentally and physically. You have a great love of beauty and exceptionally good taste. Many artists, writers, designers and theatrical stars were born in Taurus. Paradoxically, with all your love of and talent for the creative, you could be a whiz at finances. But if you take up some form of business as a career, you will probably pursue some form of art as a hobby. Your wholesome outlook on life and optimism in the face of obstacles are outstanding. Birthdate of: William Randolph Hearst, newspaper magnate; Duke Ellington, pianist-composer.

HAPPY GRADUATE - Bill Raymer, also known as Boho, expresses his pleasure upon presenting a graduate certificate at Louisville, Ky. Raymer is a member of the faculty of a school for clowns that held graduating exercises.

HISTORIC PHOTOS — The Third National Bank of Circleville has on display, for approximately one month, a large collection of historic photographs of Circleville and Pickaway County. Some of the pictures were taken as far back as the early 1800's. There are many photos of Ted Lewis and early Pumpkin Shows. The display was arranged through the efforts of Joe Tomlinson of the Third National Bank and Ned Harden. The pictures can be viewed during regular banking hours.

Solar Energy Costs To Be Competitive?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Solar energy costs may be competitive with other means of producing electricity within five years, the new chief of the Federal Energy Administration says.

"If you get these more advanced technologies of direct conversion of sunlight to electricity, it means that the energy restraints are off your backs forever," Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary told guests at the American Newspapers Publishers Association convention on Wednesday.

O'Leary also said President Carter's energy plan has received a "very, very positive" response, although different interest groups have opposed specific portions.

"The petroleum people are somewhat miffed over their treatment," O'Leary said. "Some of the environmental people don't like the coal aspects, or the nuclear guidelines. Some of the consumer people would prefer to see no excise taxes."

"But, by and large, these are not attacks on the central objective of the program ... (to) share the burden more or less equally across the economy," O'Leary said at a news conference following his ANPA speech.

In his speech before 1,400 publishers and editors, O'Leary said as recently as two years ago he believed that the technology to efficiently produce electricity from sunlight was 25 years in the future.

But since then, the increasing cost and impending shortage of other energy sources has spurred research to the extent that he now expects practical results from solar energy technology within five years, O'Leary said.

Current solar energy technology costs 10 to 15 times the cost of other sources to produce electricity, "but we can close that gap entirely within five years," he said.

But in the short term, O'Leary told the ANPA convention, the only solution to the energy problem is conservation of energy.

Armed Bandit Strikes

Circleville Police are searching today for the person who robbed the Drive Thru, 475 E. Main St., at 9:15 p.m. Wednesday night.

According to the report, a young male white subject entered the Drive Thru from the rear entrance. He approached the cash register, pulled a small black pistol, and instructed the employee on duty to give him all the money.

After taking the money, the subject ran out the rear entrance and headed south through the alley immediately beside the Drive Thru.

The report states that the subject is five feet three inches to five feet five inches tall, approximately 18-20 years old, has a moustache, and hair of almost shoulder length.

Circleville Police have learned that while the robbery was taking place, there were two males in a white 1973 or 1974 LeMans with a 30 day tag in the Drive Thru. The police are asking that the two persons report any information that they might have to either Ptl. Ron Smith or Capt. Jerry Smallwood of C.P.D., who are heading the investigation.

Justice was production foreman. During the presentations, Mr. Harrison also awarded service pins to Wilmer McConnaughey (left) for 45 years and Richard Trump (right) for 20 years. Harrison noted that the local franchise was acquired in January of 1957 and the original plant was replaced in 1961 and the present location built in 1973. When Hanawalt first began seeing Bobby, he didn't know where to take him, or what to do with him. Now, they go just about everywhere together. They have been to the park, Hargus Lake or to Hanawalt's farm near Five Points, where they fish and ride his horse.
